Nothing helps improve your home's appearance better than the rich luxury of genuine wood garage doors. The very best in wood garage door design and manufacturing starts with the natural elegance of fine woods like Western Red Cedar and African Mahogany. Known for rich grains and a warm palette, these woods range in hue from light amber to deep mahogany brown, making The TimberBay Collection™ versatile and well equipped to accent any home's architecture.

The Raynor TimberBay Collection™ offers exceptional craftsmanship in a wood carriage house design. The Swing-Up, Swing-Out, Accordion and Bi-Fold models include an endless array of possibilities for both older homes and newer residences.

Providing unsurpassed strength and structural integrity, the solid wood frame, polystyrene insulated core and beautiful cedar or mahogany exterior combine to create extraordinary durability, practicality and elegance.

The simplicity of one-piece swing up doors are a reminder of the past. Windows are added to break up the strong vertical orientation of the design, creating the perfect complement to modern, traditional or rustic architecture.

The classic split-look door is reminiscent of swing out doors from turn-of-the-century carriage houses, country homes and cottages. Decorative bucks and windows add variety to the design, while accenting with optional wrought iron handles and hinges complete the look.

Southwest Style

The three-segment door may look like it accords to the side, but horizontal section breaks allow the door to open upward. Half bucks add character to the design, while the arch top satisfies architectural styles that dictate a curved top appearance.

Bi-Fold carriage doors imitate the classic beauty and strength with a four-segment facade. Windows offer great variety to the design, often balancing a home's architectural period and style.
